HONGKONG, MARCH 5TH, 1875.

THE terrible catalogue of calamities at sea which made the close of the past year so sadly memorable in many an English home, and in which the burning of the Cospatrick stands fearfully pre-eminent, has excited the most anxious interest in Great Britain. Much discussion has been aroused there on the subject of saving life and taking precautionary measures in case of accidents at sea. The loss of 470 lives at one time is truly appalling to contemplate; it is greater than the number of slain on many a battle-field; and the circumstances attending the catastrophe are unspeakably saddening. The disaster is indeed awful enough to rouse the interest of the most apathetic, to waken commiseration in the breast of the most selfish. But, unhappily, sorrow for the fate of the lost will not bring them from the depths of the ocean; generous subscriptions for their relief will not dry the tears of the mourners, will not restore to them the departed. Still it is satisfactory to find the British public ready, as ever, to minister to the material wants of those on whom this lamentable occurrence has fallen with unexpected and crushing force. Charity could not be much better bestowed. The relatives and friends of the emigrants who sailed in the Cospatrick belong to the lowliest walks of life, and it is hard to say what bright visions of a prosperous future might have been built on this journey to a new and wealth-giving country. Some positive distress would be inevitably entailed by the event, for there is little doubt many of the passengers left behind some who were dependent on their exertions, and who were but temporarily provided for. The sum subscribed will suffice, at all events, to alleviate their most pressing necessities, and it will probably be considerably augmented by and bye.

The lessons taught by this disaster and some others, notably the loss of the La Plata, will, we trust, not be forgotten or passed over. The London Press have insisted upon this very strongly, and it is to be hoped that their recommendations will not be lost sight of by Government. It is only too certain, in the first place, that a great many ships leave port far too heavily laden, with dangerous cargoes improperly stowed, and with extremely inadequate means of saving life in the event of shipwreck or fire. Many ships' captains neglect entirely to exercise the crew in getting the boats out periodically—a most necessary proceeding, for on the speed and ease with which this can be effected may depend the lives of half the people on board. But there are very many ships provided with only half the number of boats required for the preservation of the passengers and crew. The Cospatrick, with 476 souls on board, carried only six boats. With these it would, under the most favourable circumstances, have been impossible to save all, and hence there was culpable want of provision for the safety of the passengers on the part of the owners, and want of proper and efficient supervision on the part of the Government inspector. Then, again, the boats were not properly provided with oars, sails, and gear, nor were they provisioned in any way. There should have been at least fifteen boats in the Cospatrick, a good supply of life-belts, and the means of making rafts. Of course, it is impossible to guard against all contingencies effectually—the numerous boats and rafts of the Japan failed to save all the passengers, and its admirable appliances for extinguishing fire were not equal to the occasion—but none the less ought every conceivable precaution to be adopted to lessen the risk, and make such disasters infrequent and unlikely.

It is surmised that the fire originated in the fore part of the ship through spontaneous combustion among the coals. Certain descriptions of coals containing pyrites of iron are liable to take fire when damp. The coals on the Cospatrick were stored in close proximity to a water-tank, which may have leaked. On the top of the coals a lot of salt provisions were laid, and the boatswain's locker, containing oils, paint, cotton waste, and other inflammable articles, adjoined. Abreast of the fore-hatchway was another lot of oils, pitch, tar, and paints, while about 50 tons of spirits were stowed in the run. Here were combustible materials with a vengeance. Surely the exercise of a little common-sense might have suggested the undesirability of storing such materials in close contiguity. But though the danger did not apparently strike the officers of the ill-fated ship, others may draw an instructive lesson therefrom for their guidance in the future. Emigrant ships, too, ought not to be allowed to carry any cargo beyond what is sufficient to ballast the vessel, and that of a nature not likely to prove inflammable or otherwise dangerous. The Government will act wisely and humanely in making regulations providing for the greater safety of the shoals of emigrants so continually leaving the shores of the United Kingdom.

The fund being raised under the auspices of the Lord Mayor of London for the relief of the aged and dependent relatives of the emigrant and crew of the ill-fated ship Cospatrick, has reached, by last accounts, the sum of £3,192 2s. 8d.

We beg to call the attention of our readers to the rules and regulations of the Philadelphia International Exhibition published in another column. Intending exhibitors will gather from them the conditions under which exhibits will be admitted.

HONGKONG CHORAL SOCIETY'S CONCERT.

The members of the Hongkong Choral Society gave a private concert yesterday, at 4 o'clock, at the City Hall. There was a good attendance. Part I. was opened with a glee, "In the Lonely [illegible] fairly given. An instrumental quintette, Andante and Tarantella, Opus 191 (Reissiger) followed, and was greeted with considerable applause. A part song, "Over her Grave" (Mendelssohn), was very nicely sung. A violoncello solo, "Frühlingslied" (Mendelssohn), was capitally rendered by a well known amateur, and vigorously encored. In response, another selection was substituted, which was as well received. "Sigh no more, Ladies," a glee by Stevens, was sung with spirit, and warmly applauded. The second part of the programme commenced with chorus and solos, "Spirits Advance" (Bishop), which was very well executed, and was greeted with very decided approval by the audience. "L'Assedia di Leida" (Petrella), a soprano solo, was admirably rendered by a lady who has before delighted Hongkong audiences. It literally brought "down the house," which gave a persistent encore, and the lady, on returning, favoured the audience with another solo, which was also loudly applauded. The quartette, "By Celia's Arbour" (Horsley), a popular and much admired piece, was done justice to by the gentlemen who undertook its performance. It was followed by a glee, "From Oberon in Fairy Land" (Stevens), which was well sung and received with applause. The National Anthem, sung as a solo and chorus, brought the programme to an end and closed a pleasant entertainment. Mr. Frayling wielded the conductor's bâton with ability and success. It seems to us a pity that the Society cannot command more ladies' voices, as the bass and tenor at times rather overpower the soprano and contraltos. But probably this is unavoidable in a small colony where, of course, the ladies are in so large a minority.

INQUEST.

An inquest was held yesterday at the Government Civil Hospital, before Jas. Russell, Esq., coroner, and a jury consisting of Messrs. Head, Gomez, and Mehta, on the body of Chan Afook, an earth coolie, who met his death by a land slip at Belcher's Bay, Shek Tong Tsui.

Dr. Wharry, Superintendent of the Hospital, said the deceased was brought to him on the previous afternoon. The face and head were considerably contused, and death must have been caused by suffocation.

G. Hennesey, P.C. No. 6, said a report was made that a man was killed. He went to the place and found the deceased buried in the earth, which had fallen on him whilst he was digging. He was quite dead. He had him taken to the Hospital.

Fong Akeong said he employed the deceased to carry earth. He was 27 years of age, and was alone, digging earth for the purpose of making mortar. It was 11 o'clock at night when he heard of the accident. An old man came to Wanchi and told him.

Inspector Grimes said he went to the scene and examined the place. The slip was thirty feet. The soil was decomposed granite, and it was an old quarry where the slip occurred. The place is very dangerous.

The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental Death."

RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE IN IRELAND.

A disgraceful scene was witnessed on the 4th January, in the graveyard of Menlough, in Galway, on the occasion of the funeral of Sir Thomas Blake. An immense concourse of people assembled to resist the interment of the corpse in the part of the burial ground reserved for Protestants, and the reading of the funeral service by the Protestant clergy, although the deceased and his family have always professed the Protestant faith. A number of magistrates and a large force of constabulary were present, but failed to maintain order, and the service was stopped by the shouts and execrations of the mob. The Protestant party showed a determination to have the service gone through, but were pelted with stones; a violent collision occurred between them and the populace. The two clergymen who went in front of the funeral procession were knocked down, and would probably have been seriously injured if they had not been guarded by a number of Protestant gentlemen, aided by the Roman Catholic priests, who exerted themselves to the utmost to stop the scandalous riot. The mob, however, succeeded in preventing the service from being read. It is rather disheartening to find such a spirit of savage intolerance prevailing after all that has been done to establish religious equality in Ireland.—Times.

SUPREME COURT.

4th March.

BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SNOWDEN AND A SPECIAL JURY.

FABREGAS v. ESPANTOSO, $19,858.

The following gentlemen comprised the Special jury:—Messrs. L. Boyer, E. R. Belilios, J. M. Forbes, A. McIver, B. J. Behre, W. D. Harrison, and J. R. Jensen.

Mr. Hayllar, Q.C., instructed by Messrs. Caldwell and Brereton, was for plaintiff; and Mr. Kingsmill, instructed by Messrs. Sharp and Toller, was for defendant.

Mr. Hayllar laid the facts of the case before the jury. He said he appeared for Mr. Fabregas, who was formerly one of the agents for emigration at Macao. The defendant, Mr. Espantoso was a gentleman well known in this Colony, and had also been connected with the same business. The learned Counsel said as far as plaintiff was concerned the case was a very simple one, and he then went over the transactions between the parties which will be found in the evidence. The total sum claimed was $19,858. Of this, $7,500, he said, were lent to defendant; $12,000 were credits which he took over on entering a coolie emigration society at Macao in the place of plaintiff; and $358 law costs. Mr. Hayllar read several letters which had passed between the parties, and which, he contended, showed that defendant had admitted the debt and promised to pay it. He had failed to do so, however, and the present action was brought to recover it.

Plaintiff said: I am a medical man by profession. I have known defendant since June, 1873. I knew him as an emigration agent. At that time I was an emigration agent myself. My first transaction with him was my lending him $7,500. This was given him for the purpose of clearing some blankets hypothecated by the Oriental Bank. I have never received that amount nor any equivalent in the way of service. I asked him for the payment of it several times, but he said he could not pay it because he had no funds. I had no connection with a coolie association at Macao, but I appointed a gentleman agent for an expedition of emigration to Peru by the vessel Juan. I deposited some money—$25,000—with the association of emigration agents. It was deposited for the purposes of answering disputes in the association, and for preventing competition amongst them. I subsequently wished to withdraw from the emigration business, and in doing so I made a claim on the Society for the $25,000 I deposited. I brought an action in this Court of foreign attachment, and attached the money in the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank and the Oriental Bank. Whilst that action was pending, I saw defendant. He called upon me. He proposed to intercede in the difference existing between me and the association at Macao. I accepted his services, and reduced to writing the terms on which I wished it settled. I produce a copy of the letter. It is in my letter book at Manila. My letter book is required at Manila for the purposes of my business.

Mr. Kingsmill objected to the admission of the letter, because plaintiff had in his possession what was next best to the original, and had failed to produce it.

His Lordship said he did not see how it could be admitted unless by consent. He subsequently admitted it, subject to the objection.

Witness continued: I sent the letter to defendant. He then left for Macao, and I saw him when he came back three days afterwards. He told me then that he had transacted the business of the difference between me and the association on the terms of the letter, and had settled it. He then paid me $13,000, and said within one week he would pay the balance of the $25,000 and all expenses. He did not do so. I found afterwards that Mr. Espantoso did not settle the matter on the basis of the letter, because he himself wanted to be one of the members of the association. I consented to Mr. Espantoso being one of the association, and made over to him the place that I could have held had I continued a member. I wrote a letter to him to this effect. Mr. Espantoso did occupy that place. On the 9th November, I received a letter from him, telling me that he would come and see me about the final settlement. I never received the $12,000 balance or $358 costs from defendant. I asked him for it on several occasions, but he said he had no funds at his disposal. On the 30th January, I wrote defendant a letter (put in and admitted subject to objection. The letter was asking defendant to [illegible] lance, and $7,500 loan, still due). I received no answer to that letter. I wrote him another on the 1st April, demanding payment in three days. On the 7th of April, I received an answer from defendant, saying he had hoped to settle the account before, but would call soon and do so. On the 30th June, I wrote another letter saying that if it was not paid at once I would make him understand that my friendship was not to be abused. He did not pay it, and I then commenced this suit.

By Mr. Kingsmill: I did not know Mr. Espantoso before June, 1873, when I lent him $7,500. I lent him that amount on the intercession of the Consul-General for Peru. I was at that time the owner of the steamer Juan. The vessel was at Macao on the day I lent the money. She had a cargo of coolies on board then, and she started on the 22nd June, but had to put back. Mr. Espantoso procured coolies for that vessel at the request of Mr. Olano. I did not expect coolies to be brought there for nothing. I paid $135 for each coolie to Mr. Olano. I knew Mr. Ortes, the acting Spanish Consul at Macao. I spoke to him in the early part of 1873, and told him I wanted coolies. Ortes and Espantoso did not visit me. I had seen them together. I am quite sure that I said nothing to Espantoso about loading coolies for that vessel in presence of Olano. I agreed to pay $10 for each man to Mr. Olano, and Mr. Espantoso got some of it. I did not take the $7,500 due by Mr. Espantoso into account when I was settling with Olano. I knew a Mr. Almero, in Macao, who was engaged in the coolie trade. Owing to the opposition of the coolie association, Almero found it difficult to carry on the business, and an agreement between he and I fell through in consequence. I had given him $20,000. I subsequently agreed to take $12,000 and lose the other $8,000 which he still owed me. I attended one meeting of the members of the coolie association. I signed the minutes once. I was a partner in the house of Prade & Co., Havannah. I gave Mr. Olano permission to sign my name at several meetings. $12,000 out of the $25,000 I paid into the association was Almero's credits. I wished to withdraw from the association after the unfortunate affair of the Juan. While everything looked prosperous with the vessel I did not do so. When the vessel came back all the coals on board had to be sold, and the boilers altered. I sustained a heavy loss by her. When the Juan left first she had 819 coolies on board, but the second time she left with 153 less. I lost considerably by this, and it was after this that I took the great disgust at the coolie business. When I left the association I agreed to guarantee any amount that fell to my share, I was furnished with an account showing that $8,271 was due by me. I repudiated many of the items because they had not been incurred on my account. I retired from the association on the understanding that all the $25,000 should be returned to me.

By Mr. Hayllar—The association accepted to my credit the sum of $12,000 due to me by Mr. Almero. I abandoned the suit commenced in this Court, so that it has never been tried. My purpose in coming here was to obtain labour for a plantation in Havannah, owned by the firm in which I was a partner. I have not carried on the ordinary business of emigration agent. There is no pretence for saying that the $7,500 was paid to defendant for loading the Juan. I have never before to-day heard of that defence.

By Mr. Kingsmill—I knew the assistant harbour-master at Macao. I never on any occasion told him that Espantoso was loading the Juan for me, and was to get commission for it.

By Mr. Hayllar—Defendant could not have loaded the vessel for me; that being in the hands of the association.

By His Lordship—I do not know what became of the blankets. I had no security for the money I lent defendant.

L. Viobi was now called by Mr. Kingsmill. He said—I was assistant harbour-master in June, 1873. I had to go on all the emigrant vessels. In June, 1873, I went on board the Juan. I was on board several times with Mr. Espantoso. He had charge of the vessel. I don't know who loaded her. I had no conversation with Mr. Fabregas about the loading of the vessel. He never told me who loaded the vessel.

By Mr. Hayllar—I do not known by whom Mr. Espantoso was employed. I know there was an agency.

Mr. Kingsmill then proceeded to address the jury for the defendant. They had already probably conceived the nature of the defence. Defendant denied that the money was lent to him, and said it was given for services rendered. There were no questions of law involved in the case. It was simply a question of fact, on which it was right a jury should decide. The evidence would be found to be contradictory. Plaintiff said he lent $7,500 to a person he had never seen before, and without security and without interest; of course the statement might be true; but certainly persons like Mr. Fabregas were "like angel's visits, few and far between." Such conduct was very remarkable, and its peculiarity must be considered by the jury when they came to balance one statement against another. Defendant would tell them how he came to be introduced to plaintiff; and he would say that plaintiff promised him $10 a head for all the coolies he could get for him. That understanding went on, and plaintiff purchased the Juan, and she was fitted up as a coolie ship. She left on the 2nd June, for Havannah with coolies. It was whilst she was at Macao that a cheque was given by plaintiff to defendant for the $7,500. What was the fair inference? Why, that the money was given for services rendered in connection with that ship. Defendant's statement fitted in with the known facts. Then as to the $12,000. Plaintiff must satisfy the jury that that sum actually reached defendant's hands. Mr. Hayllar had said that defendant was, by the arrangement entered into, made debtor to plaintiff for that sum. But that, as he had said, was not sufficient. It must be clearly proved that defendant received it; and he believed he should be able to prove that he never did. He would produce the assistant secretary and also a member of the association, and they would say the association never paid the money, and consequently Espantoso never had it.

Defendant was then called. He said I am a commission agent and broker in Hongkong. Two years ago I was at Macao. I knew Mr. Ortes, Acting Spanish Consul. In consequence of a communication which he made to me I came to Hongkong. I saw Mr. Fabregas at his own house, Praya East. Mr. Ortes was also present. Mr. Fabregas told Mr. Ortes he desired an interview with me. He said he wished me to load his steamer at Macao, and to take charge of it. He said he had previously made arrangements with Mr. Almero, but that he had had a quarrel, and it was broken. He asked me to superintend the loading, not actually get the coolies. After some conversation, he read a paper in which he said I was to have a commission of $10 a head for each emigrant put on board. I accepted this offer. I had to inspect the men, see that the provisions were good, and do all that agents have to do. When the steamer Juan arrived at Macao in June I was there. I was then aware of the emigration association. They took turns to load. The Juan came under the terms of that association. I superintended the men and the provisions, inspecting everything. I was at Macao some twenty days. I went out with the vessel, and returned with the pilot. That month plaintiff gave me a cheque for $7,500. It was my commission for loading. I had not completed loading then; there were only 400 on board. She left with 800 odd. I received some bales of blankets from plaintiff for the balance of my commission. I recollect plaintiff wishing to withdraw from the association later in the year. He requested the company to settle accounts with him. I know an account was furnished him and that he repudiated it. I had a part in the arrangement by which Mr. Fabregas separated from the association. He requested me to settle the matter with the association, and I offered to do so. Plaintiff had begun an action and it was agreed that he should withdraw it, paying all costs and advertising in the papers that he had withdrawn it. It was also agreed that by paying plaintiff $13,000, I should step into his place; that was the amount he had paid. I paid plaintiff that sum. I never received $12,000 from the association, or from anyone on its account, to pay Mr. Fabregas. I have to-day heard Mr. Fabregas's letter read, in which he states the basis on which I was to settle his affairs with the association. I received a letter to that effect, but it was on other terms that the matter was finally arranged; they are the terms just mentioned. Subsequently to the letter mentioned, plaintiff authorised me to take his place in the association. The original conditions could not be carried out. I was admitted a member on the payment of $13,000—what plaintiff had paid in cash. After paying that sum to plaintiff, I did not say I would pay him $12,000 more. I never said anything to raise such expectation. Before the 30th January Mr. Fabregas had not to my recollection claimed $12,000 besides the $13,000. He had asked me for the $7,500 because he said he had sustained several losses in respect of the Juan. I told him I could not do so. The money I promised to pay in the letter I sent him was whatever sum belonging to him I might get out of the liquidation of the company after deducting the sum of $13,000 which I considered plaintiff owed me.

By Mr. Hayllar—I cannot swear that I received a letter from plaintiff dated 29th January, demanding payment of $12,000 and the $7,500; nor can I swear that I did not receive such letter. Plaintiff had sent me a written demand for the $19,858. I have not kept any cash book. I told plaintiff I wanted $7,500, and he gave it to me saying it was for my services. The $13,000 was my own. I was admitted to the association on Mr. Fabregas's footing by paying that sum. There were three shipments whilst I was in the association, and I derived my share from them. I was paid the $7,500 for the fifteen days' work. I incurred no money risk. $10 a head is the usual commission.

By Mr. Kingsmill—I had been agent four times before for different houses, and always received the same rate of commission.

By His Lordship—I had no benefit from Mr. Fabregas's credits, because I did not load any ships. These credits are at Macao now.

Antonio Meher said—I am assistant secretary to the emigration association in Macao, and was so in 1873. Plaintiff was a member of it. He contributed $13,000 in cash, and $12,000 in credits. The credits were agreements between coolie contractors and the agents of the association. Mr. Almero was also a member of the association. The credits were on a contractor named Tuna, and at the time were considered very good. Mr. Fabregas wished to break off his connection with the association, and wanted the whole of his $25,000. The association did not pay Mr. Fabregas, or Mr. Espantoso to pay to Mr. Fabregas.

By Mr. Hayllar—The money standing to the credit of Mr. Fabregas was placed to the credit of Mr. Espantoso. The credits are now outstanding, and are irrecoverable.

By the Jury—The coolies shipped in the Juan were shipped under the association. Mr. Espantoso was not a member of the association then. Agents were allowed $6, $8, and $10.

Mr. Kingsmill briefly summed up, and Mr. Hayllar replied on the whole case.

His Lordship then summed up.

After an absence of nearly twenty-five minutes, the jury found for the plaintiff as follows:—On the first count (as to the $7,500) by six to one; on the second count (as to the $12,000) unanimously.

The Court rose at twenty minutes to six o'clock.

4th March.

BEFORE C. MAY, ESQ.

A STRAGGLER.

Wm. Vincent, a marine on board H.M.S. Victor Emanuel, arrested by P.C. No. 72, was sent on board, he being a straggler.

CHARGE OF DRUNKENNESS.

Charles Markes, a marine on board the U.S.S. Hartford, arrested by O.C. 207 for being drunk, was discharged, the constable having been sent on other duty and not appearing.

REFUSAL TO PAY CHAIR HIRE.

John Caldwell, a seaman on board H.M.S. Audacious, was charged by chair coolie 596, with refusing to pay chair hire 50 cents, he being drunk. He was fined 50 cents, and ordered to pay 50 cents to chair coolies.

ASSAULT.

Hugh Carroll, a marine on board the U.S. corvette Kearsage, charged Wm. Colsen, a seaman residing at the Sailors' Home, with assaulting him. He said the prisoner committed the assault, alleging he had given information that he was a deserter from the Kearsage.

Sergeant Swanston corroborated this statement.

Philip Magar, carpenter on board the U.S. corvette Kearsage identified the prisoner as Thos. Anderson, who deserted from his vessel in December last at Shanghai.

The prisoner was fined $5 for the assault, in default, 14 days' imprisonment, application to be made at the gaol by the U.S. authorities for him to be given up.

RIOTOUS CONDUCT.

Henry Bowley and John Law were charged by J. F. Shuster, steward at the Sailors' Home, with creating a disturbance in the Home, and Bowley with assaulting him.

Prosecutor said that Bowley was very drunk and made a great noise in the Home, striking some of the inmates. He went to quiet him, when he struck him also. The other prisoner, who had been drinking with him down town, came also to pacify him, but he did it in such a rough way that Mr. Lording ordered him to be taken into custody.

After the evidence of one of the men struck by Bowley, and that of P.C. 81, he was fined $5, in default, 14 days' hard labour; and the other prisoner discharged.

ASSAULT.

Tang Achow and Man Achung, two masons, were charged by Wong Yiu On, a cook, with assaulting him.

The case was proved, and the first prisoner was fined $1, and the second prisoner $2.

RUSSIAN SEAMEN IN TROUBLE.

Tushkoff, a seaman on board the Russian corvette Askold, was charged with being drunk and assaulting Indian constable Alli Hussin, No. 600, in the execution of his duty, and tearing his uniform coat.

Police Sergeant Wassenius said he was stationed at No. 5 Police-station, and hearing a whistle and a noise outside went out and found twenty Russian seamen drunk and very obstreperous, and assaulting the Indian constable, who was endeavouring to bring the prisoner along.

The prisoner was fined $2 for the assault, and ordered to pay $2 for the damage done to the constable's coat.

ASSAULTING THE POLICE.

The remanded case in which H. Clay and another seaman named Rivers were charged with assaulting Chinese constable No. 223 came on again to-day, the man having been discharged from Hospital.

The first prisoner was fined $5, and the second $10.

NAVAL WARFARE.

P.O. Bond No. 4, charged Wong Atong, a cargo boatman, and two boatwomen with fighting and creating a disturbance in their endeavour to get alongside the steamship Formosa on her arrival from Canton.

The first prisoner was fined $5; in default, one month's hard labour; the second $2, or 14 days'; and the third $3, or 21 days' hard labour.

UNLAWFUL POSSESSION.

J. Ozorio, an apprentice on board the British ship Forward, now in Aberdeen Docks, charged a carpenter, named Wong Lin Chi, with the unlawful possession of 9½ lbs. of new composition nails, which he was carrying away out of the docks in his basket.

The prisoner denied the charge, and was fined in the sum of £5; or, in default, to be imprisoned for three months.

STEALING CLOTHES.

Chun Asing, a boatman, was charged by his master, Cheong Ashing, with stealing from him a pair of shoes and a pair of trowsers.

The prisoner, who admitted the charge, was sentenced to one month's hard labour.

OBSTRUCTION.

Chun Apo, a chair coolie, was fined 50 cents for obstructing the entrance to the Stag Hotel at 11 o'clock last night.

BEFORE JAMES RUSSELL, ESQ.

A CHINESE CONSTABLE IN TROUBLE.

The remanded case in which Mak Ashing, Chinese constable No. 273, was charged with entering a brothel, assaulting the cook, and intimidating the mistress, in reference to a case in which a man got 14 days for assaulting one of the inmates, came on again to-day.

The prisoner denied the charge, and said he did not strike the cook.

On examination of the Police defaulters' book, there were eight cases recorded against him.

His Worship told prisoner that he had power to flog him, but he would not do it although he deserved it. He, as a police constable, had attempted to thwart the ends of justice, and he would sentence him to six months' hard labour, and order him to be exposed in the stocks at the scene two hours, with a card on his back describing his crime and the fact of his being a police constable.

THE "AUDACIOUS" CONTINGENT.

The remanded case in which H. Whitcombe, a seaman unemployed, Chas. Shea, Alex. Hook, and W. Hayes, seamen on board H.M.S. Audacious were charged by P.C. McFarlane (No. 58) with being drunk and disorderly came on again to-day. The second, third and fourth prisoners being discharged were made witnesses in a charge of assault by H. Whitcombe on their shipmate named Burges.

A. Dixon, an ordinary seaman on board H.M.S. Audacious, said he was in the company of Burges and going along the Queen's Road when they came up to some American seamen. He saw the prisoner deliberately come up to Burges and strike him on the head with a club and then drop it. The prisoner then went and stood on the pavement as if nothing had been done. The seamen around accused him of the act, and the police came and took him into custody.

The prisoner denied the charge, and said he could prove that he was in the London Inn till 11 o'clock with a friend.

E. Gardener said he was a seaman, and had known the prisoner for six years, and always thought him a quiet man. He was with the prisoner in the London Inn till 11 o'clock, and he did not see him with a stick.

The prisoner received the benefit of the doubt, and was discharged.

ALLEGED UNLAWFUL POSSESSION.

Li Aki, accountant at the Wo On pawnbrokers shop, charged one Hi Atak, a chair coolie to Messrs. Lammert, Atkinson & Co., with the unlawful possession of a pawn ticket for a jacket. He said that on the 17th ultimo, he was ordered by the Court to deliver it up to parties who laid claim to the jacket.

The prisoner gave full description of the jacket in question, and said his wife made it, and produced other jackets of the same make, size, and cloth.

The prisoner was then discharged, and the pawnbroker ordered to deliver up the jacket to him on payment of the money deposited.

THE STATE OF PERSIA.

The Cologne Gazette states that the Shah's visit to Europe has occasioned many alterations in the external appearance of the upper and middle classes in Persia. Shoes are worn, the baggy trousers are reduced, the chin is shaven—an innovation obnoxious to the orthodox Mahomedans—the cap is not so high, and the whole dress is a mixture of Armenian and European fashions. But chairs are not adopted; they are used only for European visitors, while the natives fold their legs on the cushion or footstool. In religious matters the old fanaticism is less frequently displayed, and the missionaries enjoy great liberty. The numerous Armenian Christians are conscious of the protection of the Russian Ambassador, and their influence is materially increased by many of the foreign residents marrying their daughters, as European wives often go to Europe, and are a burden rather than a comfort to their husbands, while the Armenian women are not inferior in looks to their English sisters. The old abuses in the Government still exist. The Army is a real plague spot. Only day labourers and the poor are enrolled, the rich purchasing exemption by presents to the officers. Three marks a month are punctually paid to the men, but all allowance for clothes is curtailed, so that the soldier in order to live is driven to plunder, in which he only too gladly indulges in the most brutal fashion. The tendency to dishonesty is an ineradicable element of the national character, and is only repressed in Teheran under the immediate eye of the Shah. There alone the lower classes breathe freely, for they do not suffer from the general tyranny of officials of all grades, and the soldiers dare not invade the houses and fields and take what they please without payment. The famine of 1872 has inflicted serious wounds on the country. The English arbitrators who traversed Seistan during the time of the greatest distress to settle the boundaries of Persia passed days without seeing a child or hearing a song. They estimated the mortality at 1,500,000, more than a quarter of the population. The railway projected by Baron Reuter is at a standstill. It is hoped that an equivalent will be found for it, as the Shah is very anxious for improved communications, and recently ordered a survey for a horse railway from Teheran to Schah Abdul Azim, while he has summoned Post Office officials from Austria to organize a Postal Service.

The landlord of a hotel in Boston entered, in an angry mood, the sleeping apartment of a boarder and said, "Now, sir, I want you to pay your bill, and you must! I've asked you for it often enough, and I tell you now, that you don't leave my house till you pay it." "Good!" said his lodger; "just put that in writing; make a regular agreement of it; I'll stay with you as long as I live!"

THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION AT PHILADELPHIA, 1876.

The Congress of the United States of America has provided for the holding of an Exhibition of Arts, Manufactures, and Products of the Soil and Mine. A proclamation by the President, issued July 4th, 1873, announced the Exhibition and commended it to all nations.

The Commissioners appointed by the Chinese Government to superintend the transmission of articles intended for the Centennial Exhibition are as follows:—

For the ports of Chefoo, Tientsin and Newchwang, Edward B. Drew, Commissioner of Customs at Chefoo.

For the ports of Shanghai, Ningpo, Chinkiang, Kewkiang and Hankow, Gustav Dietring, Commissioner of Customs at Ningpo.

For the ports of Foochow, Amoy, Tamsuy, Takow, Swatow, and Canton, Charles Hannen, or pro tem. J. L. Hammond, Commissioner of Customs at Swatow.

GENERAL REGULATIONS FOR FOREIGN EXHIBITORS.

The Exhibition will be held at Fairmount Park, in the City of Philadelphia, and will be opened on the 19th day of April, 1876, and closed on the 19th of October following.

All governments have been invited to appoint Commissions, for the purpose of organizing their departments of the Exhibition. The Director-General should be notified of the appointment of such Foreign Commissions before January 1st, 1875.

Full diagrams of the buildings and grounds will be furnished to the Foreign Commissions on or before February 1st, 1875, indicating the localities to be occupied by each nation, subject, however, to revision and readjustment.

Applications for space, and negotiations relative thereto must be conducted with the Commission of the country to which the applicant belongs.

Foreign Commissions are requested to notify the Director-General, not later than May 1st, 1875, whether they desire any increase or diminution of the space offered them, and the amount.

Before December 1st, 1875, the Foreign Commissions must furnish the Director-General with approximate plans, showing the manner of allotting the space assigned to them, and also with lists of their exhibitors, and other information necessary for the preparation of the Official Catalogue.

Products brought into the United States, at the ports of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Portland, Me., Port Huron, New Orleans, or San Francisco, intended for display at the International Exhibition, will be allowed to go forward to the Exhibition buildings under proper supervision of customs officers, without examination at such ports of original entry, and at the close of the Exhibition, will be allowed to go forward to the port from which they are to be exported. No duties will be levied upon such goods, unless entered for consumption in the United States.

The transportation, receiving, unpacking, and arranging of the products for exhibition will be at the expense of the exhibitor.

The installation of heavy articles requiring special foundations or adjustment, should, by special arrangement, begin as soon as the progress of the work upon the buildings will permit. The general reception of articles at the Exhibition Buildings will commence on January 1st, 1876, and no articles will be admitted after March 31st, 1876.

Space assigned to Foreign Commissions and not occupied on the 1st of April, 1876, will revert to the Director-General for re-assignment.

If products are not intended for competition, it must be so stated by the exhibitor; and they will be excluded from the examination by the International Juries.

An Official Catalogue will be published in four distinct versions,—viz., English, French, German, and Spanish. The sale of Catalogues is reserved to the Centennial Commission.

The ten departments of the classification which will determine the relative location of articles in the Exhibition,—except in such collective exhibitions as may receive special sanction,—and also the arrangement of names in the Catalogue, are as follows:—

I. Raw Materials—Mineral, Vegetable, and Animal.
II. Materials and Manufactures used for food, or in the Arts, the result of Extractive or Combining Processes.
III. Textile and Felted Fabrics; Apparel, Costumes, and Ornaments for the Person.
IV. Furniture and Manufactures of general use in construction and in dwellings.
V. Tools, Implements, Machines, and Processes.

VIII. Engineering, Public Works, Architecture, etc.
IX. Plastic and Graphic Arts.
X. Objects illustrating efforts for the improvement of the Physical, Intellectual, and Moral Condition of Man.

Foreign Commissions may publish Catalogues of their respective sections.

Exhibitors will not be charged for space.

A limited quantity of steam and water-power will be supplied gratuitously. The quantity of each will be settled definitively at the time of the allotments of space. Any power required by the exhibitor in excess of that allowed will be furnished by the Centennial Commission at a fixed price. Demands for such excess of power must also be settled at the time of the allotment of space.

Exhibitors must provide, at their own cost, all show-cases, shelving, counters, fittings, etc., which they may require; and all counter-shafts, with their pulleys, belting, etc., for the transmission of power from the main shafts in the Machinery Hall. All arrangements of articles and decorations must be in conformity with the general plan adopted by the Director-General.

Special constructions of any kind, whether in the buildings or grounds, can only be made upon the written approval of the Director-General.

The Centennial Commission will take precautions for the safe preservation of all objects in the Exhibition; but it will in no way be responsible for damage or loss of any kind, or for accidents by fire or otherwise, however originating.

Favorable facilities will be arranged by which exhibitors or Foreign Commissions may insure their own goods.

Foreign Commissions may employ watchmen of their own choice to guard their goods during the hours the exhibition is open to the public. Appointments of such watchmen will be subject to the approval of the Director-General.

Foreign Commissions, or such agents as they may designate, shall be responsible for the receiving, unpacking, and arrangement of objects, as well as for their removal at the close of the Exhibition; but no person shall be permitted to act as such agent until he can give to the Director-General written evidence of his having been approved by the proper Commission.

Each package must be addressed "To the Commission for [Name of Country], at the International Exhibition of 1876, Philadelphia, United States of America," and should have at least two labels affixed to different but not opposite sides of each case, and giving the following information:—

(1) The country from which it comes; (2) name or firm of the exhibitor; (3) residence of the exhibitor; (4) department to which objects belong; (5) total number of packages sent by that exhibitor; (6) serial number of that particular package.

Within each package should be a list of all objects it contains.

If no authorized person is at hand to receive goods on their arrival at the Exhibition buildings, they will be removed without delay, and stored at the cost and risk of whomsoever it may concern.

Articles that are in any way dangerous or offensive, also patent medicines, nostrums, and empirical preparations whose ingredients are concealed, will not be admitted to the Exhibition.

The removal of goods will not be permitted prior to the close of the Exhibition.

Sketches, drawings, photographs, or other reproductions of articles exhibited, will only be allowed upon the joint assent of the exhibitor and the Director-General; but views of portions of the building may be made upon the Director-General's sanction.

Immediately after the close of the Exhibition, exhibitors shall remove their effects, and complete such removal before December 31st, 1876. Goods then remaining will be removed by the Director-General and sold for expenses, or otherwise disposed of under the direction of the Centennial Commission.

Each person who becomes an exhibitor thereby acknowledges and undertakes to keep the rules and regulations established for the government of the Exhibition.

Special regulations will be issued concerning the exhibition of fine arts, the organisation of international juries, awards of prizes, and sales of special articles within the buildings, and on other points not touched upon in these preliminary instructions.

Communications concerning the Exhibition should be addressed to "The Director-General, International Exhibition, 1876, Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. A."

The Centennial Commission reserves the right to explain or amend these regulations, whenever it may be deemed necessary for the interests of the Exhibition.

A. T. GOSHORN, Director-General.

John L. Campbell, Secretary,
Philadelphia, July 4th, 1874.

PARSEE FEMALES.

A Parsee correspondent, writing from a mofussil station, considers the social condition of Parsee females so deplorable that he loudly calls for Government interference in the matter by improved legislation. What with early and ill-assorted marriages and the consequent growth of immorality, the domestic relations of most Zoroastrian families have, he maintains, become truly degrading to the community at large. The home-life of a people is undoubtedly the best test of its advancement in all that contributes to the happiness of social existence, and if the above account reflects the actual state of things as prevailing among Parsees, the modern civilization for the majority of the race must mean the thinnest possible varnish.—Times of India.

THE REVOLUTION IN URUGUAY.

Mr. A. E. Smithers, manager of the London and River Plate Bank, writes to the Financier in reference to an article in that paper:—My attention has been drawn to the leading article in your paper of this date, wherein, after conveying certain news just received by telegram from Montevideo, you add, "Upon inquiry, this intelligence receives confirmation at the hands of the River Plate Bank," whereas our telegram only states as follows:—"Uruguayan Government fallen; rebels in power; general alarm; business suspended; British squadron in harbour." This, you will see, does not in any way allude to or confirm some of the statements made by you, and particularly your assertion that the new President "will in all probability suspend any further remittances to Europe for the service of the foreign debt."

THE NEXT POPE.

The Ultramontane Pfalzer Zeitung says that in case of vacancy of the Papal See, Prince Bismarck would use all his influence to have Cardinal Hohenlohe elected, and that the Governments interested in the matter would accept the choice, as the secret documents of the Arnim trial prove. If France objected, a military demonstration would be made on the Rhine. The new Pope would recognize the politico-religious legislation of Germany, and annul the decrees of the Vatican Council of 1870.

The Magdeburg Gazette hears from Vienna that in Count Andrassy's answer to Prince Bismarck's despatch relative to the election of the next Pope it is stated "that the Emperor Francis Joseph does not intend to renounce the historical right of the exclusion of candidates of whom he does not approve at the next Papal election."

FREIGHT RATES.

A Liverpool correspondent of the Shipping and Mercantile Gazette writes:—

The year 1874 closed with great depression in Shipping. During the early part of it freights outwards opened tolerably good, and 35s per ton for coals was paid to Bombay, both from Birkenhead and Wales, whilst about the same time 40s could be had to China and Japan, and 32s 6d and 35s to Rio de Janeiro and Monte Video respectively; but before the year closed the rate to Bombay was only 19s, to Rio 22s, and to Monte Video 24s. To the United States Ports the rates for sailing ships have been practically nil, inasmuch as the loading and discharging expenses absorbed all that could be obtained. In short, at the close of the year no remunerative outward employment was to be had for sailing vessels. In the early months of the year fairly remunerative rates were obtainable homewards—for instance, 60s from Bombay, and 65s to 67s 6d from Calcutta; but now 45s is the rate from the former, and 50s to 55s for jute from the latter place. California, which in the early part of the year promised good returns to Shipowners, owing to a combination by men called "Grangers," the produce of the country was withheld from shipment, and to this circumstance—and, consequent thereupon, a large accumulation of tonnage—rates fell to 50s., now 55s. to 60s.; whilst had trade flowed legitimately the probable result would have been that freights would have ruled at or over 70s. per ton throughout. To come nearer home, cotton freights from the American Atlantic Ports, as well as from the Gulf of Mexico, were ruinously low—¼d. to 13-32d. from the former, and 15-32d. to ½d. per lb. from the latter. These rates simply mean a loss to the Shipowner on the voyage, without any provision for depreciation. In the Timber Trade the same result awaits the Shipowner, as everyone knows that a freight of 30s. per load (the current rate) will not meet the requirements of a voyage if there be not an outward freight also earned. To add to the unfavourable position of Shipowners—owing to the frequency of burning of coal-laden ships, Underwriters in self-defence have raised the rates of Insurance to such a height that, with the now current freights outwards, the Owner might as well despatch his ship in ballast. As instances—from Wales to China, 9 guineas per cent. premium is asked; to Singapore, 8 guineas; to Bombay, 6 guineas; whilst from the Tyne 1 or 2 per cent. more is charged—10 and 12 guineas per cent. was paid by one Shipowner from that river to Aden—these on wooden ships; and this high charge is also applicable, but in a lesser degree, to iron ships. Take one of 1,200 tons register, worth £20,000, laden with coal for Bombay, the insurance premium would reach £1,000, to be met out of a gross freight of £1,700. And if this is the cheerless state of the case outwards, the prospects homewards, speaking generally, are scarcely more promising. It may be said that the case is one of supply and demand, and cannot be regulated by any other law; still it is quite within the province of Owners to put the question to the test, whether it is not probable that, by a little more consideration for their own interests, by placing in ordinary for a time a small percentage of their tonnage, they may not in the result, by an enhancement of frights, obtain a return that will in the end eventuate in a profit on their capital embarked.

Attention is called in the Times by "A Catholic" to the fact that the name of Lord Camoys has been struck out of the list of Catholic peers in the "Catholic Directory" for 1875. This Directory is printed permissu superiorum, and the editor is Archbishop Manning's secretary. "A Catholic" asks whether the excision is the act of Lord Camoys himself or of some other person.

A CAT STORY.—There is a Chinese cat in Athol, Mass, that has an extra claw to each foot, resembling a thumb, and goes about opening doors by taking hold and turning the round knobs thereto. Thus says the Worcester Spy, and the reader is expected to believe it; but when that paper asserts further that that cat shuts doors behind her in the same way, it goes a step too far for pardonable credulity.

Dr. Richard Fegan, M.D., writes to the Times to state that Mrs. Dudden, the widow of the late Captain Dudden, commander of the La Plata, was safely delivered of a son on Monday evening, and that both mother and child are progressing satisfactorily. She is still unconscious of the sad fate of her husband, and will be kept in ignorance of it until sufficiently recovered to bear the shock of such news.

A telegram of Cape Coast news to the 29th of December states:—Governor Strahan returned from Leeward on the 27th inst. The weather is much improved. There is a possibility of the slave question proving troublesome, as chiefs from the interior complain strongly of their people leaving them. Trade suffers in consequence, as the traders will fear to come to the Coast when their carriers are allowed to leave them. The health of the Coast is fair. The Monrovia is on shore at Lagos with no hope of getting cleared.

STORY OF HORACE GREELEY.—Here is another story about Horace Greeley: On a certain occasion, as he sat writing at his editorial desk, he received a visit from an irate man, who spent fifteen minutes in pouring out upon his head a torrent of denunciation, to which the abused man replied not by so much as a single word. At length the visitor, seeing that the editor could not be induced to pay him the compliment of defending himself, passed out of the door with a growl. Thereupon Mr. Greeley, rising, with his pen in his hand, and, following the departing censor, cried out: "Come back, my friend, and free your mind. Don't go off without entirely relieving yourself."

LITERARY AND ART GOSSIP.

Mr. Compton Reade is to be the literary editor of the resuscitated Leader, and Mr. S. Phillips Day its art editor.

The foundation-stone of a new parish church has been laid at Harby, Lincolnshire, by Mrs. Jarvis, of Doddington Hall. The late G. K. Jarvis, Esq., had left £1,100 towards this work.

The first mission church erected in connection with the Wilberforce Memorial Fund has been opened on a plot of land in the parish of St. George, Albany Road, Camberwell. It is an iron church, and will accommodate 250 persons. The building is the gift of a private donor.

The death is recorded of the celebrated French engraver, M. A. G. Ronsseaux, whose rendering of Ary Scheffer's "Christ and St. John" secured his artistic reputation. He also engraved Delaroche's "Christian Martyr," Hébert's "Virgin and Infant Jesus," and some of Correggio's works.

The Christmas gift of the Emperor of Germany to the King of Italy was his own portrait, painted, life-size, by Karl Arnold, who has represented the Emperor as standing before a chair of state, in full general's uniform, wearing the riband, chain, and star of the Italian Order of the Annunziata.

Several journals have stated that the celebrated "Violin-Player," by Raphael, has been lost; but Le Français says that it has never left Rome, though the public are not allowed to see it. It is reported that it will ere long be sold, along with a few paintings forming the collection of the Sciarra Palace.

The Japan Gazette learns that a large work on "Japanese Ceramic Art," by Messrs. Bowes & Audsley, is in active preparation; the first part will probably be ready early in 1875. The plates are being printed in Paris in the highest style of chromo-lithography, and the work will be one of the most beautiful of its kind ever produced.

The Morning Post says that the Queen has been pleased, on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, to grant a pension of £50 a year to the widow of Giovanni Battista Falcieri, the faithful servant of Lord Byron, celebrated in the writings of the great poet, as well as in those of Moore, Rogers, and Shelley, by the name of "Tita."

Among the disasters at the fire at Littleton House was the destruction of Hogarth's picture of "Strolling Players in a Barn," which had been painted, in 1741, for Mr. Wood, of Littleton, for the sum of £25, the original receipt for the picture being attached to it. The picture was insured for £1,000, and was about to be removed to the South Kensington Museum.

We (Figaro) said, some months since, that Miss Elizabeth Thompson was engaged on a picture for next year's Academy, having for its subject the charge of French cavalry on English infantry, formed in square, at the battle of Waterloo—a theme that will test the artist's powers both as regards men and horse. The title of the picture will be, "The 28th at Quatre Bras."

The "golden wedding" of the Rev. Henry Stebbing, D.D., F.R.S., has lately been celebrated at St. James' Parsonage, Hampstead road. Dr. Stebbing wrote the first article in the first number of the Athenæum, and is the author of "The History of the Christian Church," "History of the Reformation," "History of Chivalry," "Jesus and other Poems," "Lives of Italian Poets," and other works.

Some valuable manuscripts relating to the Cornish language have (the Academy states) been recently purchased by the trustees of the British Museum. They were chiefly the work of the late Rev. John Bannister, and consist of a "Gerlever Cernonak," or vocabulary, a glossary of Cornish names, some miscellaneous collections relating to the language, and an interleaved copy of Johnson's English Dictionary with MS. notes of Cornish equivalents of words.

At a public meeting in Glasgow it has been resolved to form an industrial mission settlement at the south end of Lake Nyassa, in connection with the Free and Reformed Presbyterian Churches of Scotland, as a memorial to Livingstone. It was stated that it is proposed to raise £10,000 in the first instance, and nearly the half of that sum was subscribed at the meeting. The station is to be placed under the charge of Mr. E. D. Young, R.N., who commanded the Livingstone Search Expedition.

A subscription bust of Mr. Spurgeon was lately unveiled at the Metropolitan Tabernacle. We hope that it was not so thoroughly realistic—especially as to the white tie and coat and waistcoat—as was the bust of the reverend gentleman exhibited, some years ago, in the sculpture den at the Royal Academy. On that occasion Mr. Spurgeon's bust was placed next to that of the beautiful and classical-featured Mrs. Frederick Wynn Knight, and the contrast was so great as to invite comparisons that were not "odorous."—Figaro.

The Pioneer informs us that the Secretary of State for India has appointed Dr. G. Thibaut, Professor of Oriental Languages in the University College of Aberystwith, to the Anglo-Sanskrit Professorship in the Benáras College, vacated by the promotion of Mr. Gough. Dr. Thibaut is a Sanskritist of great attainments. He was employed under Professor Max Müller in editing the two-volume edition of the text of the Rigveda, and at the late International Congress of Orientalists he read a very able paper on the Geometry of the Vedas.

A correspondent of the Times, writing from New Zealand, says:—"Those of your readers who take an interest in Maori matters may care to know that a Maori chief, Henare Tomoana, who resides a few miles from Napier, in Hawke's Bay, is trying the novel experiment of a Maori newspaper. The Wananga, as the new journal is called, is published fortnightly, printed in Maori, with an English translation in a parallel column. A local paper 'hails the birth and existence of its 'contemporary' as one of the 'healthiest signs yet given by the Maoris of their progress in civilization.'"

A subscription was lately opened in Baden to erect a plain monument in the churchyard of Eastitt to the memory of the unfortunate Republicans who were shot there in 1849 when the Prussians marched into the duchy under the present Emperor, then Crown Prince, and put the revolution down. The usual sanction was obtained from the civil authorities; but the erection of the memorial has been officially prohibited by the Imperial commandant of the fortress, who informs the committee that he is the legal representative of the court-martial which sentenced the unfortunate persons referred to, and as such cannot allow their graves to be disturbed.

Galignani states that the copyright of the works of the late M. Michelet has been disposed of at the office of M. Meignen, notary. Some difficulty having occurred among the heirs of the deceased, a necessity arose of putting up that portion of the property to public competition. Among the persons present were MM. Charpentier, Dentu, Michel Lévy, Lachaud, Lacroix, and others of the principal publishers of Paris. The whole was put up in one lot at the price of 196,000 f. No bid was made, and the amount was gradually reduced to 50,000 f. Offers of a small amount were then forthcoming, until finally MM. Lévy, brothers, were declared to be the purchasers at 56,000 f.

As there has lately been some talk of the removal of the Monument to make way for the improvement of King William-street, it may be worth while to notice the views of an art critic soon after the time that column was erected. In 1734 a pamphlet appeared under the title of "A Critical Review of the Publick Buildings in and about London and Westminster." The writer makes some suggestions which have since been carried out. He wishes the view of St. Martin's Church opened out towards Charing-cross, and would have Lincoln's-inn-fields "made a credit to the whole city;" while he observes with regret that from Devonshire House to Hyde Park-corner "there is nothing remarkable except the shops and yards of the statuaries; and sorry I am that they afford a judicious foreigner such flagrant opportunities to arraign and condemn our taste." Piccadilly seems to have been the Euston-road of a hundred and fifty years ago. The writer's opinions as to the Monument are not yet quite out of date:—"The Monument is undoubtedly the noblest modern column in the world. . . . Nothing can be more bold and surprising, nothing more beautiful and harmonious, . . . nothing material can be cavilled with but the inscriptions round about it. Nothing, indeed, can be more ridiculous than its situation, unless the reason which is assigned for so doing (sic). I am of opinion if it had been raised where Cheapside Conduit stood, it would have been as effectual a remonstrance of the misfortune it is designed to record, and would at once have added an inexpressible beauty to the vista, and received as much as it gave." Sir Robert Peel's statue now occupies the site of the conduit; and it must be admitted that the Monument would form, in its place, a fine group with the dome of St. Paul's as it is seen from the end of Paternoster-row.—Pall Mall Gazette.

RITUALISM AND ROMANISM.

Monsignor Capel, in the Times of January 16th, brings to a close the correspondence between Canon Liddon and himself, by giving some further quotations from Ritualist publications to prove his assertion that the Ritualists are disseminating Roman Catholic doctrines. The first quotation Monsignor Capel makes is from "The Priest to the Altar," which he says he has been informed was edited by Dr. Liddon and another High Church clergyman; and the passages he quotes, Monsignor Capel says, contain "in our own language our doctrine of the Real Presence." From a book published by a "Father of the Society of St. Joseph," Monsignor Capel quotes a prayer to the Virgin, and "A few plain directions for awakening in the heart a pious devotion to Mary." Among the recommendations is the following: "Keep an image or picture of Mary among your objects of piety, and wear a medal bearing her effigy." Another member of the same society edits a book called "Oratory Worship," which, Monsignor Capel says, "might, with the smallest modification, be used by our own people. I must avow it almost took me in." He concludes by asking the Canon and the Ritualist clergy why they should hide the doctrines and practices to which he has referred if they are legitimate. "I cannot conceive, for instance," he says, "why one of our books, the 'Manuel des Confesseurs,' should be translated under the title of the 'Priest in Absolution,' be widely circulated among Ritualist clergy, become their guide-book in the Confessional, and then, because the matter is discovered, that it should be said Confession in the Church of England is merely counselled, but not exacted."

Monsignor Capel also writes to the Daily News with reference to the following passage in an article which appeared in that journal:—"Dr. Newman, we are glad to see, limits very distinctly for himself the authority of Papal intervention. We certainly did not understand Archbishop Manning or Monsignor Capel to adopt such view." Monsignor Capel sends a long extract from his Reply to Mr. Gladstone's Expostulation to show "how thoroughly he is at one with the distinguished Oratorian."

MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY.

The Denver Democrat, of December 5th, has the following:—

A terrible story comes to us from North-western Wyoming. It is too horrible for detail, and almost too improbable for belief; but coming as it does from well authenticated sources, and recited by one of the witnesses to the tragedy, it may be accepted and relied upon as correct.

Mr. Emile Desplane, an old fur trader of the Upper Missouri, arrived in this city yesterday from Rattlesnake range of mountains in North-western Wyoming. He brought with him two wagons loaded with peltries—the result of the past year's trapping. He is accompanied by two young half-breeds of the Shoshone tribe, who corroborate Desplane's statement.

He states that while engaged in hunting upon one of the tributaries of Green River last September, he came upon a camp of white men, which at first appeared to have been suddenly deserted. It was well supplied with groceries and provisions and all the equipage for four pack animals. It appeared evident from the adjacent surroundings that the camp had not been visited for a long time. It contained all the apparatus necessary for gulch-mining, all in a new condition and intact. As the region in which the discovery was made is far away from the range of hunting parties or Sioux and Cheyennes, and as the Snakes or Shoshones are harmless and peaceful, Desplanes concluded that the camp had been abandoned voluntarily. He camped a few days on the stream, which was fairly alive with beaver, and made use of the stores in the miners' camp. One day, while crossing over a bog back, or divide, a few miles south of the camp, and about fifty miles from Fremont Peak, he came upon the remains of three men, the bones of whom had been scattered for a distance of half a mile around. The skull of one of the men had been dragged off by the wolves nearly a mile from the other remains. There were two saddles entire, and two leather money belts rifled of their contents, as well as some clothing, and a few discolored papers. Mr. Desplanes made, with the assistance of the two Snake Indians who accompanied him, a thorough examination of the camp and the scene of slaughter, and this is the explanation:

A party of four or five white prospectors had spent several days in the camp. Three of the party were killed while out hunting by the other member or members of the party. The bodies were rifled of money and the animals and valuables taken off.

In camp were found letters bearing the Philadelphia and Albany, N. Y., post-marks, and addressed to G. L. Robinson, Denver, Colorado, and Samuel Prevett, Denver, Colorado. A few photographs were found among the other trinkets in camp, which had probably been left for a day's prospecting or hunt.

It is quite evident that another foul and mysterious murder has been committed. This crime cannot be blamed upon the Indians, as they would have taken the scalps and arms and left the money. White men, or a white man has committed this horrible crime, which is by a mere accident brought to public notice. It is to be hoped that the perpetrators will be identified and brought to justice. But this is very improbable.

OCCUPATION AND LONGEVITY.—The opinions of country doctors all over the State have, during the past year, been obtained by the Massachusetts Board of Health, with a view to determine the effect of occupation on longevity. It appears that a table collated for 23 years shows the average of farmers at death to be 65·13 years—figures far in advance of any other callings, and greatly exceeding the lifetime of active mechanics, not in shops, who, averaging 52·63 years, appear next on the list. The opinions of the physicians consulted also show that the farmer's chances of long life are somewhat greater than those of any other class. As regards general health, there appear to be divided views, the large majority of doctors, however, holding that farmers and their families enjoy better health than most people, while a respectable minority advocate the reverse.

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

An ANGLO-CHINESE DICTIONARY, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

FOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Chalmers' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto published.

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally.

It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.

BILLIARD TABLES.

C. LAZARUS & Co.'s Billiard Tables are now the only ones appreciated in India, as a long and steady experience extending over 50 years has proved them to be the best and most suitable for the climate.

C. L. & Co. have received a large number of very flattering testimonials from all parts of India, China, Burmah, Ceylon, Manila, Java, Straits, and Persia, testifying to the superior make and quality of their Billiard Tables, and while thanking their Friends and Patrons in China for the liberal support so long extended to their firm, would, in soliciting further patronage, beg to mention the following facts which have conduced to the success their efforts have hitherto met with.

Every table is made of solid wood, well seasoned and not veneered.

The Cushions are constructed on an entirely new principle, introduced by C. L. and Co., and unlike that adopted by English makers, and are much more durable and lively than English-made cushions.

No table leaves C. L. and Co.'s premises until it has been standing ready finished for over 12 months, in order to ensure perfectly seasoned material.

Every article of furniture, also, that leaves C. Lazarus and Co.'s Establishment, is guaranteed of Solid and Seasoned Wood.

C. L. & Co. have always ready a large stock of new Cushions on their peculiar principle, and which can be supplied for any table, the accurate length and breadth of the slate bed only being required.

C. L. and Co. have always in hand a large stock of Billiard, Pool and Pyramid Balls, Cues, Tips, Chalks, Cloth, and every requisite for the Billiard Table.

Old Cushions renewed on C. LAZARUS & Co.'s peculiar principle, thereby making an old table as good as new.

BILLIARD LAMPS.

Six and Eight Light Lamps for Oil, or Kerosine, the latter with burners on the duplex principle, giving a light equal to twelve ordinary lamps.

Eighteen light ring burner Gas Pendants, with rod to suspend over table.

BESSIE AND I.

BY MEM.

You Moon! Have you got any God in the sky?
That we should be scorned by passers by,
And left in the street to starve and die,—
Bessie and I?

We've been thrust away from many a door,
And we only asked the alms of the poor,
A crust of bread and a bed on the floor,—
Bessie and I.

We're hungry and tired, and sore are our feet,
From treading so long up and down the street
Through the blinding storm of snow and sleet,—
Bessie and I.

I guess I'll make us a bed in the snow,
For Sissy's so tired, and then you must know
In all this city we've nowhere to go,—
Bessie and I.

We'd go to Heaven, if it wasn't so high,
But maybe angels will come, by-and-by,
And carry us up to the bright, blue sky,—
Bessie and I.

THE OLD MAN ELOQUENT.

When Edward Irving was asked if in conversation with Coleridge he could ever get in a word, the great preacher answered, "I never wish to get one in." And it is related that at the inn in which Coleridge was sojourning just before his marriage, the landlord was so struck with his conversation that he offered him board and lodging free if he would only stay in the house and talk.—Cornhill.

HOW TO RENDER CLOTHING NON-INFLAMMABLE.

A large number of lives are lost every year by the burning of clothing of women and children, and many disastrous fires result from the igniting of bed clothing, curtains, and other light fabrics made entirely of cotton or silk. A simple expedient which would render such materials non-inflammable would prove invaluable to every household. Many experiments have been made with various combinations of chemicals, but none have been entirely successful. More than a dozen years ago there appeared in a London chemical journal a formula for a solution which it is said can be used by mixing it with the starch for fabrics which are laundried, and can also be used for other fabrics, and without injury to texture or color in any case. This formula has been recently republished by the Insurance Monitor, and is as follows: "To prepare a solution of minimum strength, a concentrated solution of tungstate of soda is diluted with water to twenty degrees Tralles, and then mixed with 3 per cent. of phosphate of soda." We should be glad to know the results of experiments with this preparation.

CORDELIA.

It remains that I try to say something of Cordelia, though I do not forget Schlegel's words, "Of Cordelia's heavenly beauty of soul I do not dare to speak." She tells us of herself, and you may accept every word her true lips utter, that

"what I will intend,
I'll do't before I speak."

Her whole nature shrinks from loud avowals and protestations. She loves to be, not to seem. When Goneril's tongue overflows with fine phrases of filial affection, her very soul recoils.

"What shall Cordelia do? Love, and be silent."

When Regan rivals her elder sister in professions, she whispers to herself—

"Then poor Cordelia!
And yet not so; since, I am sure, my love's
More ponderous than my tongue."

When at last her turn comes in this queer viva voce examination, all her truthful instincts are aroused, and it seems to her it would be treason to add her voice to the lying chorus. Also the question is put to her in a way dreadfully offensive to her disinterested spirit—

"What can you say, to draw
A third more opulent than your sisters! Speak."

Is love to be traded in so? Are the treasures of the soul to be bought and sold? She will not say a word! Perhaps, one might say, she cannot say a word. It is true that she "cannot heave her heart into her mouth." Still less does she care to "mend her speech a little, lest it should mar her fortune." Blame her, if you please, and tell us what a perfect person would have done. What you say may be all very true, but the world is not populated by perfect persons, and Shakespeare does not make it his business to draw perfect persons. And you must take her as she is. She will have to suffer for this waywardness, perhaps. Let us only think for the present of the impulses of truth that govern her being. The poor King, when he curses her, does indeed bless her—

"Thy truth, then, be thy dower."

It is so: this is the divine "settlement" nature has made for her! Truth is indeed her jointure. And so the King of France is right when he declares "she is herself a dowry." Who does not applaud and envy his high choice?—

"Fairest Cordelia, thou art most rich, being poor;
Most choice, forsaken; and most loved, despised!
Thee and thy virtues here I seize upon:
Be it lawful, I take up what's cast away.
Gods, gods! 'tis strange, that from their cold'st neglect
My love should kindle to inflamed respect.
Thy dowerless daughter, king, thrown to my chance,
Is queen of us, of ours, and our fair France:
Not all the dukes of waterish Burgundy
Can buy this unprized precious maid of me.—
Bid them farewell, Cordelia, though unkind;
Thou losest here, a better where to find."

We see nothing more of this fair, true woman till towards the end of the piece, when she lands with forces to avenge her father's wrongs. But Shakespeare has contrived to keep her perpetually before our mind's eye.—Fortnightly Review.

LUTHER AND IGNATIUS.

History does not offer a more striking contrast than that between Luther and Ignatius. Each had a soul fired with one great passion; each had an indomitable character, and that power of governing men which is the only royalty by Divine right. Everything else in them was different. The monk of yesterday was the least clerical of Christians. His broad chest inhaled the free air with delight. He broke down the walls of the cloister in a moral as well as material sense, and sought to mingle religious thoughts with the whole range of existence. He was the greatest of lay preachers, a veritable tribune of the people, transferring the discussion of great religious questions to the open market place, and appealing from canon law and its conjuring books to the sacred books which everybody can read, and to conscience, whose oracles are universal. Strange to say, it was the gentleman who had long been a page at Court before he became a valiant soldier, who was destined to become the guardian, or rather the jailer of the sanctuary, closing it against every breath of the Renaissance, and forging on its altar the gilded but heavy chains with which he meant to try and bind to the past a world that was on every hand slipping away from it. It was Luther's special gift to take the initiative. Ignatius was the sworn enemy not only of all progress, but even of all reform. Luther wrote, spoke, struggled, with a manly joy, the outbursts of which he could not always restrain. Ignatius was sombre and melancholy, feeling in effect that the movement of the world and of men's minds was against him. His life was one long straining, a gigantic effort, an heroic wager to perform impossibilities. Luther's frankness bordered on brutality; Ignatius carried his calculations with him into the act of prayer, and could couple duplicity with extreme fervour.—M. de Pressensé.

LACE.

Galignani's Messenger has the following: "The 18th of November is the fete of the women who make lace. That is the day on which they honor their patroness, St. Elizabeth of Hungary. The reason why that holy personage was selected for that high position is not well known, but the version generally accredited is, that the saint was almost constantly covered with a transparent veil of extreme fineness, and which resembled lace, a designation not invented at that time, since the veritable fabrication only made its appearance in Belgium at the commencement of the seventeenth century. It was then coarse and made with thick thread. Colbert, who found the new article to his taste, determined to introduce the production of it into France. With that view he procured Belgian workwomen, and founded in 1666, at Alençon, the first manufacture of lace, and in the modern day the commerce in the article is immense. The production occupies 100,000 women in the Department of the Calvados, and more than 140,000 in Auvergne. The transactions must be calculated by millions of francs. The finest sorts come from Brussels. Then rank the Mechlin point, Valenciennes, Alençon, English and Venetian point, and the blondes of Chantilly. The industry is pursued in about twenty departments in France, and some towns are specially remarkable for it, such as Caen, Arras, Glermont, Gisors, Tours, Vienne, Avesnes, etc. It is also made in Switzerland and Holland, but of a quality not so esteemed. Lace is made of the fibre of flax, silk, and gold and silver wire. The true article is that made from flax, and it is the finest and the dearest. Its value augments with the delicacy and perfection of the thread, which costs as much as 6,000 francs the kilogramme (two pounds). The lowest qualities are worth 200 francs the kilogramme. These prices of the raw material will give an idea of the ability required on the part of the workwomen. Lace made with silk takes the name of blonde. It is the more sought after for being regular and of absolute whiteness, but it cannot be cleaned without deterioration. That made with gold and silver wire is only used for church ornaments and decorations."

WONDERS OF THE GREEN LANE.

"Let us go down the lane, towards that patch of bare sandy ground, and find out something about those bright blue flies that are dashing about so vigorously. See how they alight on the tawny soil, and how fast they run over its surface! Now we see that they are not flies at all, but beetles, albeit they take to flight as readily, and are as active on the wing, as the blue bottle flies, which they so closely resemble while in the air. Catch one of them in the net as it flies along, and examine it. What a pleasant perfume issues from its body! Surely it must have been feeding on roses and verbenas. No, it is a totally carnivorous insect, and rapacious to boot, and the agreeable scent is part of the mystery of its nature. There is another beetle, very much larger, being at least ten times its size, called the musk beetle, which possesses a powerful rosy perfume, and, curious enough, is coloured after the same beautiful fashion. Our lively little friend is called the tiger beetle, and well does it deserve the name, for a winged tiger would not be more destructive among beasts than is the tiger beetle among insects. What enormous projecting eyes it has ('the better to see you with, my dear') and what long and powerful fangs ('the better to eat you with'). How firmly it is clad, bright and shining mail, deep, steely blue below, and green bedropped with gold and crimson above. Just look at its wing cases through the pocket-magnifier and see what a wondrously magnificent creature it is. Solomon was not robed half so gloriously as the lilies, nor were the Nepaulese princes half so gorgeously begemmed as this little beetle. Take it home; put it under the inch-power of the microscope, concentrate the light upon it with the condenser, and then say whether the jewelled beauties of Aladdin's palace could compare with the dazzling radiance of our little tiger beetle! Fancy a few square yards of golden network set closely with emeralds, sapphires and rubies as large as hazel nuts, and with diamonds as big and of more fiery splendour than the Koh-i-noor; illuminate them with the electric light, and you will then have some idea of the raiment with which God clothes even the smallest of his creatures. None can have the least conception of the hidden magnificence of the every-day objects around them with a true and observant eye, and a sympathising and loving heart; and none but these can form so exalted an idea of the glories of a future life, which the earthly eye of man cannot see, nor his heart even conceive."—From "Insects Abroad," by the Rev. J. G. Wood, M.A.

A LEGEND OF THE IRON MASK.

During the 17 years' confinement of this strange prisoner at Sainte Marguerite, St. Mars, who brought him to the fortress, was replaced by a Monsieur De Bonpart, as Governor. The daughter of the latter, just emerging from childhood to womanhood, grew up with this mystery around her. She had seen the graceful figure of the masked prisoner promenading at night upon the terrace and at worship in the chapel, where he was forbidden to speak or uncover his face, the soldiers in attendance having their pieces always pointed toward him if he should attempt to do either. She discovered that her father always treated him with the greatest respect, serving him bareheaded and standing. His table-service was of massive silver, his dress of the richest velvet; he wore the finest linen and the most costly lace. She had heard her father accidentally speak of him as "the Prince." No wonder that his sad fate occupied her thoughts by day and his noble figure haunted her dreams by night. She, too, was very young and beautiful, and their eyes occasionally met in chapel. He sang beautifully, and was a very skillful performer on the guitar. It is said she climbed the rocks under the castle terrace, and sang sweet songs to the poor captive. Thus a romantic love sprang up between them, and as it gained strength the young girl dared to purloin the keys from her father, and so obtained access to the prisoner. When the Governor discovered his child's treachery he was struck with the greatest dismay. His oath was binding upon him to put immediately to death any one who had spoken to the prisoner. But she confessed her love for him, and pleaded piteously for her young life. The captive, also, to whom the Governor was much attached, joined his prayers to hers, and implored that they might be made man and wife, and then the secret would be safe. The Governor was not stern enough to immolate his child, and perhaps a gleam of ambition may have flashed across his mind, as, in the event of the death of Louis XIV., the prisoner would be acknowledged and his daughter sit on the throne of France. However, their nuptials were performed by the priest of the castle in the dead of night, and all were sworn to secrecy. From this union two children were born. A whisper of this reaching the ears of the Minister, the Marquis of Louvois, the prisoner was immediately removed to the Bastile for safe keeping; and the mother, the priest and Governor disappeared. The children were sent to Corsica, to be brought up in obscurity under the name of their grandfather, Bonpart, which was corrupted into Buonaparte. And thus, says the legend, Providence avenged the wrongs of the twin brother of Louis XIV. and restored the oldest branch of the Bourbon line to the throne of France.—Scribner's Monthly.

JUSTICE IN ASHANTI.

The administration of justice—justice from an African point of view, we must always remember—is not bad, notwithstanding all the barbarous pomp and cruelty, which we must also recollect is not looked upon as cruelty by the people, and is, indeed, considered essential to good government. To abolish bloodshed would endanger the crown—for no people are more conservative of old customs than your African grandee. All civil, judicial, and diplomatic business is committed to the hands of a set of men skilful in that plenitude of talk essential to the conclusion of every bargain, or the settlement of every affair of life, public or private, known as "palaver." Milder offences are expiated by a fine, and if a man slays his inferior in rank, he must recompense the relatives of the person whom he has killed; but if one of his equals is killed, then the murderer must wipe out his crime by killing himself. Though no penalty is attached to killing his slaves, yet if a man kills his wife or children, then he must pay a recompense to the wife's relatives. When a man marries a woman, any property which she may be possessed of does not by right belong to him; the property of the wife and husband is separate. Though a man of noble or caboceer rank may sell his wife to another man, yet the crime of adultery is rare, and is severely punished when detected. No woman can, however, be sold against her will; if her husband resolves to do so her relatives can redeem her by paying over to him the price which he originally paid for her. She is further at liberty, should her husband afterwards be convicted of adultery, to resume her maiden name. Slavery exists, but a slave can regain his freedom, if he is persistently ill-used. Indeed, all over the Gold Coast slavery is the mildest of its kin.—Cassell's Book of the Races of Mankind.

BURMESE AMAZONS.

In addition to their Chobwahs, or petty princes, these Shans, a people of Laos, were accompanied by three young and beautiful women of rank, who were believed, not only to be endowed with the gift of prophecy, but to possess the power of turning aside the balls and bullets of those barbarian foreigners who had come out of the sea to insult the Lord of the White Elephant. In strange but warlike costume, these three Amazons were seen constantly riding among the Shan troops while mustering and stockading, which they were permitted to do till the 1st of December; when the Burmese were stimultaneously attacked by Sir Archibald Campbell, Sir Willoughby Cotton, and Commodore Sir James Brisbane, who had carried the flotilla up the river, and cannonaded the stockades in flank, while the troops attacked them in front. These were our 41st Welsh and 89th Regiments, the flank companies of the Royal Scots, and the 18th Madras Infantry—the whole being commanded by Colonel Godwin. At every point the Burmese and the Shans were defeated; and, in ten minutes, ferreted out of their over-crowded works by the bayonet, as soon as our troops got among them. Of physical strength, they had plenty; of moral courage, nothing. The Wongee who commanded the left wing, a man in his 75th year, was slain; and a vast number of Shans who failed to understand the signs which meant mercy, surrender, and quarter, had to be destroyed in the desperate and useless struggle within these stockades: 300 lay dead, and were left, with 100 Cassay horse, and a vast quantity of warlike material. One of the Shan Amazons received a fatal bullet wound in the breast. The moment her sex was discovered, our soldiers bore her tenderly from the scene of carnage to a place of shelter in the rear, where she expired. In the retreat, another of those ladies was seen galloping her horse across a little river. A shrapnel shell exploded over her head, and she fell from her saddle into the water; but whether she was killed, or merely terrified, none could know, as she was immediately borne off by her followers.—Cassell's British Battles on Land and Sea.
